I am proud to be recognized as one of the leading real estate attorneys in the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan area.

Building McMillan Metro Faerber into the well-respected firm that it is today has been a truly rewarding experience. I am proud when I think of all of the amazing projects that my team and I have helped our clients acquire, develop, build and sell over the years. Even better, I am especially pleased to have been doing this work with some of the firm's clients for more than 25 years. I highly value these long-term relationships and always look forward to establishing new ones.

The firm's real estate group assists residential and commercial builders and developers with everything from acquisition to home sales and beyond. Our firm also prides itself in being on the forefront of current issues in real estate law, including drafting and shaping state legislation affecting the real estate industry, particularly as it affects builders and developers.

You may reach our real estate team for further assistance.
