Litigation isn't just about filing documents and appearing in court.

We approach your matters as strategic problem solvers and make every effort to avoid litigation when it is in your best interests. If litigation becomes necessary, and it often does, then we work with you to anticipate the likely arc of a case, design a thoughtful plan, and continuously refine our approach as events unfold. Whether in a courtroom, arbitration hearing or telephone conference call, your interests are well served by our experienced litigators.
