Disputes & Litigation

At McMillan Metro Faerber our attorneys appreciate that not every business relationship works out. We understand that in every business problems arise, that mistakes happen, and that employees do not always do the right thing. We also understand that the risk and severity of these issues can be exponential in a health care business. When these issues happen, our health law attorneys and business litigation attorneys work closely with one another and with our clients to understand the issue, to provide advice to mitigate the risk to the health care business and/or its owners, and to respond to the issue. Our health law attorneys understand both the legal and business aspects of our client's health care businesses, which, time and time again, has provided our clients with a distinct advantage when such disputes arise. In addition, when appropriate, our health law attorneys work hand-in-hand with our clients' malpractice insurance counsel to provide technical legal expertise, health care industry insights, and the best outcome possible. Here are some of the Dispute & Litigation areas where McMillan Metro Faerber provides experienced legal advice and representation for our clients:

- Shareholder/Member/Partner Disputes
- Disputes with Employees and Employers
- Billing, Reimbursement, and Payment Disputes with Third-Party Payers
- Contract Disputes with Hospital Systems
- Vendor Disputes and Breach of Contract Claims
- Evaluation of Professional Board Discipline Charges and Claims
