

Individual Services for Professionals

Not every McMillan Metro Faerber health care client is a start-up or thriving health care practice. Our health law attorneys regularly work with individual health care providers to help them navigate unusually complicated and complex health care business relationship. Whether it is helping a new health care provider to review, understand, and negotiate their first employment agreement, or working with a seasoned health care provider to review and negotiate the buy-in to, or acquisition of, an existing health care business, or working with a health care provider to understand a letter received from a hospital or regulatory disciplinary board, or working with a senior health care provider on succession planning or the sale of an established health care business, the health care attorneys at McMillan Metro Faerber have the technical knowledge and practical experience to help navigate that process. If we are able to help, no matter is too small. Here are some of the Individual Services for Professionals where McMillan Metro Faerber provides experienced legal advice and representation for our clients:

- Employment/Professional Service Agreements
- Buy-In and Ownership Agreements
- Representation in Internal and Facility Disciplinary Matters
- Evaluation of Professional Board Discipline Claims and Charges

Attorneys

Michael A. Faerber

David P. Shapiro

Andrew H. Milne